

POPULAR OPERA.

The performances at the Grand Opera House are meeting with hearty encouragement. Every night last week the large audience was filled with listeners, and on Wednesday, when "Hilary" was sung, it was estimated that over 1,000 persons were present in the theatre, moreover, evoked a genuine outburst of enthusiasm, which lasted until he had appeared five times before the curtain.

On Friday night it was supposed that the loryton would duplicate his success, but he was called to Boston by the illness of his wife, and a novice, Mr. Perry Averill, took his place on short notice. The opera was not performed with the same success as the first, but it was not without interest. It was a goodly audience, and the performance was not without interest.

On Saturday afternoon "Martha" and on Saturday evening "The Bohemian Girl" were sung. Last night "Gounod's" "Faust" was given before a large audience. The performance of the principal parts merited the general applause which they met. Mme. Tarnay was Marguerite, Lizzie Macchielotti, Estel; Fannie Gonzales, Martina; Augustus Montegiffa, Faust; Giuseppe Campanari, Valentin; Alphonse Fuguet, Wagner, and W. H. Clark, Mephistopheles. To-night "Il Trovatore" will be sung.

For Both Sexes—City. ABOUT THAT "FAMILIAR TALK." A gentleman from Brooklyn who has read my advertisement says: "You write a model ad, and I don't doubt are a model advertiser. I want your book, and would pay for it if it were a price as I expect to order a few more copies to do something from it." Yes, it is possible to learn something from it, though it is, in no sense, a textbook. Some people might call it an advertisement of a business on a practical course, or a guide to success, but it has something to say on these topics and a good many others, in an incidental way. It is an entirely harmless book, however, and there is not much risk in sending for it. It costs only the price of the postage stamp that costs 75 cents.
